CHARLESTON.

FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 10, 1867.

Jos Work .- We have now completed our time, ALL KINDS OF JOB WORK, and we most respectfully ask the patronage of our

REGISTRATION. We publish this morning an order from the Headquarters of this Department, which initiates the necessary proceedings for the ac-complishment of the registration in this State. The time selected is, we think, judicious. By the third Monday in July the wheat crop ill have been harvested, and the corn and cotton crops pretty generally laid aside, and the gathering of these latter crops will not be fairly commenced before the close of the registration. The appointment of numerons regis tration boards will enable the voters of the Disricts to register in their immediate neighborhoods, and thus there will be no unnecessary interference with the agricultural labor of the country.

This is a great point gained, and we sincerely hope that both employers and employed will recognize the advantage of the arrangement, and while the one affords every facility and encouragement to their laborers to register, the other will not be misled by designing men to waste their time in gatherings which can, in no way, facilitate the exercise of their undisputed-rights.

We, of course, regretthat the registers should be required to take the test oath-an oath, which simply prevents the very class of men, who would best discharge this duty to the whole country, from accepting these offices. But this is the explicit requirement of the Act turers have decided to paymen by the hour, by and the military authority here has no option which device a pin is stuck clean through the but to administer it. All citizens who desire and the military authority here has no option to fill these offices, and can take the prescribed oath, can apply for appointment, but they must be recommended by those officers of the State and the United States whose positions give them the opportunity of knowing their fitness and whose characters will give weight to their recommendations, for as the order says:

"It is essential that every Board of Regisration should be composed of persons of recognized consideration and worth, fairly representing the population, and in whose imparinlity and capacity the body of voters in the county may have just reliance."

With this brief reference to the Order, w might leave it to the consideration of our readers; but we feel it a duty to call their attention to a fact which is implied in the sentence which we have quoted above. And that fact is that in this Order we are brought face to face with the practical application of the Reconstruction. Act. Up to this time, while we have accepted, more or less willingly, the truth that the colored population of this State are free citizens thereof, we have not yet had the experience of the joint exercise of political

But when appointments to the discharge of colitical duties are to be made from citizens "fairly representing the population, and in whose impartiality and capacity the body of voters in the county may have just reliance," and when, in many sections, "the body oters" consist of the colored voters, what is the necessary consequence?

We may give, by what we are about to say, offence to many. We may be forcing upon the practical consideration of sensible men a subject they would gladly avoid. But to us there s neither manhood nor wisdom in refusing to see what lies before our eyes. The object of this registration is to secure a faithful record of the voting population of this State. Our object clearly ought to be that these voters, when once ascertained, shall act together, with confidence in each other, for the good of the whole State. Now, circumstances beyond our control have divided these voters into two classes, of which. we are the minority in numbers, but the superiors in intelligence, in experience, in wealth in all that makes political power.

Those who mistrust us out of the State, and those worse enemies whom we have in the State, bave diligently taught the colored voters of this State that from us, the white voters of the State, they cannot expect justice; that we will never yield to them their rights, except under the pressure of the military government which controls us. Here is the first practical opportunity to give the lie direct to these charges, to prove to the freedmen that their rights will be respected by us, that to a common law there shall be a com on obedience.

Now, neither the Republican party, which has passed the Reconstruction Act, nor the freedmen, who are anxiously watching its execution, will believe in the impartiality of a registration which is conducted solely and entire Their conduct may be beyond reprise of voters. picion, but it will be both repreached and suspected. We do not refer to the probability of the action of the military authority, which has the power of appointment, because we do not know what it will be, and because we do not wish to consider it as an element in this argument.

We do not refer to the fact that, as a very great proportion of the registered votes will be colored, it would be necessary to have upon the Boards men familiar with the voters, whose better knowledge would act as a check upon frands.

We take higher grounds than either. We say that now upon this first occasion which has offered, we, the white men of this State who expect to govern this country, and who with ustice and common sense will govern it-we ought to say to the colored voters of the State, t is of infinite moment to us and to you the this registration should be fair and full, without fraud or suspicion of fraud. Our intelligence, our long political experience, our superior knowledge entitles us to the greater roportion of these appointments. We mean

o administer this law honestly and impartially, out if there are among you men who can fulfill the requirements of the authorities, men "of recognized consideration and worth,": "fairly representing you," and in whose "impartiality and capacity" you have "just reliance," we will recognize their right to share this duty with us, and we will act with them in good faith. This has been said in special cases already announcing the abolition of slavery in Brazil, and herewith publish a fuller dispatch upor the subject;

REO JAMESO, April 8, 1987.

Via LONDON, MAY A.

The Emperor Don Propo the Second of Brazil. with the advice of his Ministers, signed to-day an imperial decree by virtue of which slavery is abolished throughout the Brazilian empire. This most important executive order is to take ect in a period of twenty years, so that no violence will be done to what is termed the "right of roperty" in the slaves.

Children of every class born within the limits of the empire after this day, the 8th of April, are de-clared absolutely free by birth, so that it uny be truly said we now inhabit a land of freedom, in which industry and labor will soon find a fair re ward. As will be seen, henceforth every child born in the empire is free, and in twenty years all the slaves shall be free. The slave population of the Empire is estimated at 3,000,000. The following interesting extract, respecting that country, we clip from the Norfolk Tribune:

The State which has just taken this important step in the road of progress, covers about 3,000,000 square miles of the richest portion of the South American continent, being a little greater in extent than the United States .-Nature has given it the most magnificent river system in the world. The Amazon rolls its mighty waves through the dense forests of the northern provinces-forests teeming with all the gorgeousness and luxuriance of the tropics, rich in precious woods and valuable fruit-bearing trees, and alive with the most brilliant forms of animal nature; and its tributaries are streams which in any other part of the world would be called rivers of the first class. The Rio Francisco in the East, and the affluents of the La Plata in the South, give fertility and channels of easy intercommunication to enornous extents of the country, while in the interior stretch the great grass-grown pampas, with their countless herds of cattle, covering a region seven times as big as the whole of France. There are mines of gold; there is coal in plenty; there is iron; and the annual product of diamonds is not far from $22,000,000. There s not a desert in the empire. The whole is a rich loam, covered with a vegetation unequaled for magnificence and beauty, except, perhaps, in some of the fairy-like islands of the Indian Ocean. Even with her present meager development, Brazil supplies half the world with coffee; and sends abroad also great quantities of cotton, sugar and tobacco. She has exported more of coffee and sugar in eighteen nonths than of diamonds in eighty years. It is three hundred years since the first permanent settlement of the country by Europeans; yet in all this time, and with all the marvelous wealth of the soil and the charms of a genial climate to tempt immigration, not one acre in a hundred and fifty has ever felt the labor of the husbandman; and immense regions are almost as unknown to-day as when Pincon, the companion of COLUMBUS, first took possession of the country in the name of the King of Castile.

Nor, for many years at least, has the Government, which is one of the best, most liberal, and most progressive monarchies in the world, spared any effort to attract the superabundant population of Europe. Since the Brazilians wrested their independence from the mother country, Portugal, in 1822, they have devoted themselves zealously to works of social and industrial improvement. They have freedom of ducation, freedom of the press, and freedom of religious worship. They have labored hard to develop their means of communication with the old world, having regular lines of mail steamers to the principal European ports. They have steamers on the coast and rivers. They have railways, built by English and American engineers. Their trade with Great Reifain, France and the United States is large and constantly increasing. Their imports at the latest date for which we have returns (1863) amounted to $55,000,000, and their exports to

YALE COLLEGE, November 16, 1866.

I have always recommended the Faber Polygrade Lead Pencils as the only pencils fitted for both ornamental and mathematical drawing; but, after a thorough trial of the American Lead Pencil, manufactured by the American Lead Pencil Company, New York, I find them superior to any pencil in use, even to the Faber or the old English Cumberland Lead Pencil, being a superior pencil for sketching, ornamental and mechanical drawing, and all the ordinary uses of a lead pencil.

These pencils are very finely graded and have a very smooth lead; even the softest pencils hold the point well, they are all that can be dearted in a pencil. It gives me great pleasure to be able to assure Americans that they will no long-r be compelled to depend upon Germany or any other foreign market for pencils.
